

NO PLEDGE BROKEN BY GERMANY

Evidence To Contrary Fails To Reach State Department

The United States Government To Continue Investigation

Washington, Oct. 12.—As a result of the conference between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing at Long Branch, N. J., it was stated authoritatively that no evidence of the breaking of Germany's promises to the United States had been discovered so far in connection with the submarine activities off the American coast last Sunday, but that the American government will continue its investigations and will watch very closely any repetition of the attacks.

Administration officials apparently fear that difficulties may result if German submarine warfare is carried out on a large scale on this side of the Atlantic, and that therefore it is necessary for the government to seek all facts obtainable.

Because of this fear, it was thought probable that means will be found for discovering whether Germany intends to content herself with the damage done last Sunday or will continue submarine warfare on this side of the Atlantic.

Officials here expect that the reports from Rear Admiral Knight, which will be based on the statements of officers on the relief flotilla of American destroyers that was at the scene of the raid off Nantucket, will be ready for consideration within a few days. It is emphasized that the government is making every effort to complete its inquiry as soon as possible, but that it wants to avoid a hasty or ill-considered decision in so important a matter.

Whether the German commander took proper care for the safety of the persons he put into small boats from the attacked vessels is a question in which officials believe there is no clear precedent, and on which a decision by the United States might approximate a precedent, at least so far as concerns any further submarine operations Germany may contemplate on this side of the Atlantic.

Before any policy is determined upon it is expected that the opinion of the neutrality board, created at the beginning of the war to advise the state department in regard to such questions, will be consulted.

Considerable interest centers on the continued silence of the allied embassies. Again it was stated positively at the state department that no representations of any sort had been received from the allies as a result of the U-53's visit to Newport or her depredations off the American coast.

STEPHANO'S PASSENGERS LOST ALL BAGGAGE WHEN U-BOAT DESTROYED THEIR SHIP

When the German submarine ordered the crew and passengers off the steamship Stephano before sinking the vessel the men and women had no time to save their baggage, and all was lost with the Stephano. One of the women passengers, Mrs. Martin Koshier of St. John's, N. F., was bringing her household goods to New York city with the intention of establishing a home in that city. "I lost everything," said Mrs. Koshier, "all my household goods." with her two children, Katherine and Ettie Marie. The man is a fellow passenger, George Kennedy. No. 1 is the crew of the Stephano, with some of the sailors of the rescuing destroyer Ericsson. No. 2 is the Kansas, the ship which was held up by the U-53, but permitted to proceed to Boston.
